We thank Regina Aguirre de Riojas for letting us know that we could find flor de manitas in the garden of Rodrigo Ibarguen.

We appreciate his hospitality for allowing us access to the trees and flowers so we could take the photographs here. We had been searching for a flor de manitas tree for almost two years and it sure was helpful that the tree was not 200 km away and halfway up a volcano.

A close-up photograph of a red flower, likely a red flower tree (Arbol de Manitas). The flower has several long, thin, red petals that are slightly curved. The base of the flower is a brown, textured structure, possibly a bract or a part of the stem. The background is a plain, light color.
